

Utah Appellate Court's Pro Bono Program

Income Verification Form

You are receiving this form because your case has been identified as a case for the Appellate Court's Pilot Pro Bono Program. The program connects volunteer attorneys with individuals needing an attorney. If you are interested in being considering to have a volunteer attorney, please complete the form and return it to Appellate Court Administrator, Nick Stiles, at Nicks@utcourts.gov

Income – This section will review your income. Persons include spouse/partner and dependents (not roommates who live independently). A dependent is a person living in your household where more than 50% of their livelihood is provided by you. Income includes income from adults or children where the income is used on household expenses (not including, for example, a child who makes $50 a week babysitting to save for college).

How many individuals live with you? _____

What is your total household yearly gross income? _____

Do you receive any social security? If yes, how much do you receive annually? _____

Do you receive any child support or alimony? If yes, how much do you receive annually?

Do you have any other sources of income? If yes, what, and how much do you receive annually?

Assets – This section will review your assets. Assets do not need to include: a. Your primary residence. b. One vehicle per driver in your household used primarily for transportation and not used for recreational purposes. c. Up to $3,500 of the fair market value of work-related tools and equipment. d. Insurance proceeds, judgments, or settlements that are compensation for bodily injury or wrongful death to the client or to someone for whom the client is/was a dependent. e. Cash value of any life insurance policies. f. Pensions, IRA, 401(K), or retirement plans.

How much money do you have in bank account(s)? _____

How much money do you have in stocks or bonds? _____

How much equity do you have in real property? _____ (not including your primary residence)

Please direct any questions to Nick Stiles at Nicks@utcourts.gov